"A perfect blend between The Smiths and Foals, but with enough attitude to sound fresh as anything."

- It's All Indie

"As synthy, dreamy indie pop goes, this is up there with the best of it."

- The Emergence

"Stay Lunar wants you to feel, and they'll soften the blow with their magic."

- The Permanent Rain Press

"A product of self-created sound that mixes dreamy and funky elements with rocky riffs. It's almost impossible not to bop your head to this song"

- Music For The Misfits

Released on 27th March, "Dreaming That I'm Not In Love" has already been backed by BBC Introducing: being chosen as BBC Introducing in the West's 'Track Of The Week' 2nd March.

Formed in 2019, Bristol-based five-piece Stay Lunar have had quite the impact so far with their bold indie/dream-pop sound. Their two highly praised singles, 'Brainshake' and 'Catch Up' gained them wide recognition, helping them land support slots with the likes of Larkins, Little Comets, SPINN, CLEWS, Lottery Winners and more.

"We want to make music that makes people feel something, but simultaneously want to dance", explains singer/songwriter Harry Leigh. "We really enjoy capturing melancholic subjects in their rawest form, then crafting them into upbeat and energetic songs. For us, it spins difficult topics and situations into hopeful, optimistic pieces"

Crafted with the help of producers Ady Hall and Lee McCarthy of Sugar House (Pale Waves, Larkins, Viola Beach and Mint), 'Dreaming That I'm Not In Love' is a dreamy journey through relationship insecurities and inescapable nightmares that cling to you for days, all brought to life with swirly synths, driving bass and bouncing guitars.
